Catch-ing up with a friend in the park

Alex Girard just moved to London a couple of weeks ago from Niagara Falls. He and his friend, Jess Bradshaw, play catch in the park every day. Environment Canada is calling for more sun today with a high of 24 C. Tomorrow is also expected to be sunny (high of 27 C), but it looks as if showers could be headed our way this weekend.

Anti-porn fight goes to council

► Groups say pornography perpetuates rape myths ► Tuesday's presentation to be 'graphic'

Leaders of a local movement against porn are throwing their cause in city councillors' laps.

The London Abused Women's Centre, Stop Porn Culture and Men Against Sexual Trafficking want pornography filters added to all London Public Library computers.

The groups also want councillors to prohibit boards, commissions and departments that receive city funding from leasing space to events sponsored by the porn industry.

Representatives from the trio will make a presentation about porn's impact on the community at 4 p.m. Tuesday during council's community and neighbourhoods committee meeting.

"There is a myth in society that pornography today is similar to Playboy magazine. That is not true," said Megan Walker, executive director of the Abused Women's Centre.

"Our political leaders need to understand what pornography is if they're going to be making these decisions."

MEGAN WALKER, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR,
LONDON ABUSED WOMEN'S CENTRE

"Mainstream pornography is body-punishing ... (and) often times shows women being debased."

The move comes about two weeks after the Western Fair District decided not to lease its Progress Building to The Everything to do with Sex Show, which was scheduled to start Sept. 30.

The issue with the sex show, Walker said, is not about the show itself. It's about one of the show's major sponsors, HotMovies.com, a pornographic website.

Suspects sought in robbery

Police are looking for three male suspects after a robbery and assault on the Southdale Road-Millbank Drive area.

Yesterday around midnight, a lone male victim was approached by three men who demanded his belongings. One of the suspects pulled a knife and stabbed at the victim, while another suspect punched the him in the head. The suspects then fled the area with the victim's property.

The victim was taken to hospital with non-life-threatening injuries.

Police are looking for three Middle Eastern men, all about 19, five-foot-eight and 180 pounds. Two of them had short black hair, the other long black hair in a braid. ● METRO

Police to host Hindu festival

Tomorrow at 11 a.m., the London Police Service will host members of the Hindu community to commemorate the Raksha Bandhan festival. The festival honours the loving and protective bond between brothers and sisters in a family. The symbolism of protection can be extended to all protectors in society, including police officers. The ceremony involves tying a piece of holy thread to the wrist of the protector and concludes with the serving of traditional Indian sweets. ● METRO

London company creates Facebook app

► Tbk Creative creates 'Contest King' app for Facebook ► Check out their contest for Yoyo's Yogurt at facebook.com/yoyosyogurt

MIKE ARSENAULT
LONDON@METRONEWS.CA

The implications of Facebook are vast. It seems like every day there are new formats, applications and branding tools devised to help businesses better interact with potential clients — and a London company is at the forefront.

Tbk Creative has developed an application for Forest City companies to run contests for their consumer bases through Facebook. The app is called Contest King.

"Fans can be more engaged in the brand, participate in a contest to win things," said Andrew Schiestel of tbk Creative.

"Ultimately, it's to build larger communities or engage communities around Facebook pages."

While this branding mechanism may seem like a logical step, the use of contests to promote products and services on Facebook walls is strictly forbidden by the social media hub.

"(Contests) are actually a violation of Facebook's terms and conditions entirely," Schiestel said. "You cannot run any type of contest or sweepstakes on Facebook walls — you must run them on a sub-page."

► Andrew Schiestel and Aditi Bhargava get to work in the offices of tbk Creative yesterday afternoon. Their team has created a new app called "Contest King" for businesses to run contests through Facebook.

The tbk Creative team saw that there was a need for businesses to increase awareness and web presence.

"We see a lot of corporate Facebook pages with only a hundred or two hundred followers," Schiestel said.

"We addressed that by building this application. Fans then go into their own networks of friends and family to join the pages to help them with the prizes."

iFrame solution

Because of the limitations of running a contest through Facebook, the tbk Creative team was forced to create an iFrame application, or separate page, on their own server.

"The iFrame tab rests on the Facebook page, but it's kind of outside of Facebook itself," said Paul MacLean, tbk Creative senior developer.

"The only thing you're allowed to do is require the user to become a fan of the page in order to use your application."

The contest application itself is not officially affiliated with Facebook, but it does appear within the framework of the Facebook page and software.

SARAH FRANCIS
METRO LONDON

Though we're often told to appreciate what we have right now, it's always fun to imagine what's coming next — especially when it comes to fashion. If your summer duds are starting to feel a little stale and you're ready to make room in your closet for a few little pick-me-ups, it's not too early to start thinking about next season's top trends. Looking for a must-have list for your fall wardrobe? I've asked some of London's chicest stores to share their can't-live-without items for the new season.

"Saffron Road is now carrying L.A.M.B. by Gwen Stefani, and her whole collection is stunning, from plaid maxi skirts to tailored vests. We're also especially excited about the leather dress by Malene Birger or the python-print tee by Nation."

"For Lolita, one of the newest trends is big, wide cuffs. They can be all beaded or one big piece of metal. We're also loving warm-toned turbans by Toronto designer Headmistress."

— Sue Glass, owner, Lolita

"This season's must-have pieces from Archies are Quiksilver Girls wrap sweaters and Billabong flannels — and be sure to accessorize with a new gold Nixon watch."

— Mallory Rickard, assistant buyer/manager, Archies

"Twist by PrimaDonna's A La Folie collection marries the brand's renowned full-cup support bras with bold, swinging '60s-inspired colour and co-ordinating, contemporary shapewear. It's a combination that provides the va and the vroom for lingerie this fall!"

— Liliana Mann, owner, bra-fitting expert, Linea Intima

"A menswear-inspired pantsuit in a classic shade of grey cut in a figure-flattering feminine form is a top trend for this fall. An animal print also packs a powerfully sexy punch, when styled in a sophisticated shirtwaist wrap dress."

Help Boys and Girls reach Milky Way

MIKE ARSENAULT
LONDON@METRONEWS.CA

For a fourth consecutive summer, The Boys and Girls Club of London is using milk as the centrepiece of its summer nutrition program.

But the group needs help from Londoners.

"This year we're lagging a little bit behind (our goal)," said Don Donner, CEO of the Boys and Girls Club of London Foundation.

The program is being run in conjunction with Rundle's No Frills. The goal set was $3,000 to provide 9,000 glasses of milk to thirsty kids this summer, and the Boys and Girls Club has yet to reach its target.

The Rundle's No Frills location is asking people to "round up their bill" to the nearest dollar, so that the proceeds from the rounding can go to support the Milky Way program.

"A lot of young people today from single-parent families don't get proper amounts of milk and nutrition, which helps their bone and teeth formation and all of those good things," said Donner.

Wheeling and dealing with MD chair dare

Greg Knight's a strong guy.

As a firefighter, he's used to scaling tall buildings in a jiffy and hauling pound upon pound of heavy equipment on his back. But none of that is as physically challenging as The Wheelchair Dare.

"We go through those big steel doors (at the fire station) every day and don't think anything about it," Knight said. "When you're in a chair, it makes it a little different."

Sixteen city firefighters have spent shifts in wheelchairs this week, raising money for Muscular Dystrophy Canada. They accepted the dare with a fundraising goal of $6,000. About $8,000 had been raised as of yesterday morning, Knight said.

► London firefighter Greg Knight gets an air tank ready for filling yesterday at the main fire station on Horton Street.

It's the second time the fire department has taken on the challenge. Two years ago, Knight and another firefighter raised $4,000 for the cause.

Firefighters have been big supporters of Muscular Dystrophy Canada since 1954. The partnership was formed when parents of children affected by the muscle disorder asked the Toronto Fire Department for fundraising help.

That request prompted the first canvass of Toronto neighborhoods, raising more than $200,000 for research.

Junkyards seek regulation

A group representing auto recyclers wants Ontario's political parties to endorse a program that would regulate the disposal of old vehicles.

The Ontario Automotive Recyclers Association says two out of three so-called "end of life" vehicles in the province aren't managed to any environmental standard.

They want an industry-led environmental management system for the half a million vehicles that require decommissioning in Ontario each year.

Such industry-led programs are usually funded through eco fees — a politically toxic issue for the governing Liberals, who are seeking a third term. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Traveller's spirit and Scotiabank support help Shanghai native start Canadian journey

As the operator of a Shanghai travel agency, Yuxiang Zhang had a love of travel that he put to the test when he decided to move to Canada. But when he faced worries about this colossal trip, he discovered how Scotiabank's multinational team and services can provide a smooth landing.

Mr. Zhang's personal journey began after he visited Becky, his only daughter, who had immigrated to Canada in 1999. Seeing how she was enjoying her life in a friendly, multicultural country, he decided to become a family class immigrant.

"I was excited to join my daughter, but I was also unsure about the details, such as how would I move forward without speaking English?" says Mr. Zhang, who also wondered about practical issues such as the process to transfer money to a Canadian bank.

Fortunately, Becky convinced him to attend an immigration seminar in Shanghai, hosted by Scotiabank and The Cross-Cultural Community Services Association, where Bank officials answered every question, ranging from the Canadian job market to government services. He also learned about the Scotiabank StartRight® Program¹ for Newcomers, which includes a free day-to-day bank account for one year², a wide range of VISA[®] card options³ and a number of other customized services and benefits.

"Before the seminar, I was very worried, but afterwards I felt relieved, and it gave me the courage to move forward," recounts Mr. Zhang, who arranged for his Canadian and U.S. dollar bank accounts with Scotiabank, and applied for a credit card, while still in Shanghai, through the Bank's partnership with China Everbright Bank.

After landing in Toronto in late 2009, Mr. Zhang went alone to the Scotiabank branch at the Steeles & Silverstar location to activate his accounts. Speaking only Mandarin and Russian, he wasn't sure how things would go. Luckily, he was greeted by Isa Ho, Branch Manager, and her multilingual staff. "Surprisingly, it went well, and my accounts and debit card were ready, and my VISA[®] card came within a week," marvels Mr. Zhang.

Isa, a Canadian immigrant who speaks both Cantonese and Mandarin, is well prepared to serve newcomers. She often calls them long distance before they move, to help them prepare. "I tell them about banking options and what are the best schools for their kids," says Isa, a 31-year veteran of Scotiabank, who still remembers seeing donuts for the first time when she arrived. "When they get here, we answer their questions about Canadian customs, and explain about banking in Canada. Also, since many newcomers want to buy a home, we educate them on Canadian mortgages and how to avoid credit mistakes."

Today, Mr. Zhang is enjoying life in Canada, studying English and preparing to start a tour business for both Chinese and Canadian travellers. During an upcoming visit to China, he will tell others about the opportunities in Canada and "the friendly, open and trustworthy service I experience at Scotiabank."

That's good news for Isa Ho who teaches her Scotiabank team to "Welcome every newcomer with a smile, speak their language, and serve them with our hearts."

THIS ADVERTORIAL IS PREPARED BY SCOTIABANK.

With the support of Scotiabank's Isa Ho, Mr. Yuxiang Zhang is discovering a world of opportunities in Canada.

Robbed — by callous ‘Good Samaritans’

The video has become synonymous with London's rioting: A young man, bleeding and dazed from a mugging, is helped from the ground by youths — who promptly unzip his backpack and callously make off with its contents.

But who is he?

The young man is 20-year-old Malaysian accounting student Mohammad Asyraf Haziq, who was cycling with a friend in east London on Monday to a gathering to break his Ramadan fast, said friend Dzuhair Hanafiah.

The details are as chilling as the video. First, about 20 teens and pre-teens surrounded him.

Then they grabbed his bike, took his cellphone and broke his jaw, Hanafiah said yesterday.

"The next thing he remembered, his mouth was full of blood," said Hanafiah, a member of the London Umno club, a society for Malaysian students.

The video of the attack on Haziq went viral and has become one of the most memorable scenes from four days of unrest.

Hanafiah said Haziq was helped by a local woman who brought him into her home. Using Facebook, she helped him contact a friend. Finally, he got to a hospital.

Britain's prime minister hammered out a tough line against rioters yesterday.

David Cameron promised not to let a "culture of fear" take hold.

"We needed a fightback and a fightback is underway," Cameron said in a sombre TV statement outside his Downing Street office after a meeting of the country's crisis committee.

And he warned "nothing is off the table" — including a water cannon, used in Northern Ireland but never deployed in mainland Britain.

Cameron has recalled parliament from its summer recess for an emergency debate today.

Four days of riots and looting across the nation have both outraged and frightened citizens.

Muslims urged to launch web war

Militant online forums are abuzz with calls to Muslims in Britain to launch Internet campaigns in support of the British rioters and to urge them to topple the government.

Dozens of contributors yesterday suggested Muslims in Britain should flood social media websites such as Facebook and Twitter with slogans and writings inciting the British youth to continue rioting.

One contributor says the rioters should adopt slogans similar to those used by Arab protesters during the uprisings in the Middle East this year.

One contributor says "chaos is useful to militants in London."

Norway killer convincing police he's a loner

Anders Behring Breivik was a loner, investigators increasingly believe.

The man who confessed to killing 77 people in last month's attacks in Norway planned and committed them on his own, a prosecutor said yesterday.

Breivik detonated a bomb outside government buildings in Oslo on July 22, killing eight people.

Then he shot dead 69 others at a youth camp on an island outside the capital.

There was initial speculation that others were involved in the attack.

But prosecutor Christian Hatlo said that after 40 hours of questioning, police are fairly certain Breivik acted alone and that he appears to be telling the truth.

Hatlo said police have been able to verify much of what Breivik told them about the attacks, and they had not discovered "any direct lie, yet."

"That is also why we, with a certain confidence, can say that he was alone, but I have to emphasize that we have not concluded yet," Hatlo said.

Gadhafi's 'dead' son appears on Libyan TV

► Rebels claim commander was killed in a NATO airstrike last week

Libyan state television broadcast images yesterday of a man it said was Moammar Gadhafi's youngest son in an attempt to refute rebel claims that he had been killed in a NATO airstrike.

Rebels claimed on Friday that 27-year-old Khamis Gadhafi, who commands one of the best trained and equipped units in the Libyan military, was killed in the western front-line town of Zlitan. The regime dismissed the claim and said the rebels were only trying to deflect attention from the killing last week of the opposition's military commander, possibly by other rebels.

The images on television showed the son at a Tripoli hospital visiting people wounded in a NATO airstrike and said it was on Tuesday. If genuine, it would be the first time he has been seen in public since the reports of his death.

State television also showed funerals for dozens of civilians it said had died in another NATO airstrike on Tuesday in Zlitan, a main front for the rebels fighting Gadhafi's troops. It is about 140 kilometres southeast of Tripoli.

The channel has been airing images in black and white to honour a three-day mourning period for the 85 people the government said lost their lives in Zlitan.

More than 200 people gathered around about 40 coffins set on the ground in a cemetery under the shadows of palm trees.

Someone with a loudspeaker delivered a speech while the crowd interrupted him with calls of "Allahu Akbar" — Arabic for God is Great.

"Let everyone know that the planes, supported by the governments of Qatar and the Emirates, will only increase our grudge against them and will only increase our steadfastness in the face of the enemy," the man with the loudspeaker said.

U.S. hits Syria with sanctions

Ratcheting up the pressure, the Obama administration slapped sanctions yesterday on Syria's largest commercial bank and cellphone operator as it moved to demand the end of four decades of dictatorship under the Assad family.

The Treasury Department added the state-owned Commercial Bank of Syria and its subsidiary, the Syrian Lebanese Commercial Bank, to its sanctions list, citing their links to human rights abuses and illegal weapons trade with North Korea. Mobile phone company Syriatel was targeted because it is controlled by "one of the regime's most corrupt insiders," said David Cohen, the department's undersecretary for terrorism and financial intelligence.

A revolt stalled

► The Libyan revolt that began in February has sunk into a deep stalemate in the past few months, with the rebels holding on to most of the eastern half of the country that they captured early on and Gadhafi's regime controlling most of the west. Neither side has been able to tip the balance into an outright victory, even with months of NATO airstrikes pounding regime targets.

Full speed ahead on spending cuts: Flaherty

► 'We will stay the course. We will stay on track,' Jim Flaherty says of plans to balance budget by 2015 ► But concedes economy faces risks

Canada's economy remains stable and growing despite volatile global markets, but the uncertainty poses risks for the country, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty says.

However, Flaherty said yesterday that he will stick with his plan to balance the government books by 2014-15 in part by finding $4 billion in annual savings in spending.

Flaherty said U.S. and European difficulties have not prevented the Canadian economy from performing "relatively well."

"Our focus is on creating the right conditions for more jobs and stronger economic growth," he said.

The comments follow several days of market upheaval that has seen the Toronto stock market drop sharply.

Peggy Nash, the NDP finance critic, said Flaherty isn't doing enough to cushion the economy from another slump. "What we would have liked to have seen was a little more flexibility on the part of the minister," she said.

"We know that the government has a plan in terms of cutting public spending and deficit reduction, but what we don't need right now is rigidity or even an ideological approach to our finances."

Nash said Flaherty should be looking at infrastructure spending as a way of stabilizing the economy.

Mood swing

► The mood of business leaders has slipped due to their less optimistic outlook for the Canadian economy, the Conference Board of Canada said yesterday.

► The business confidence index, compiled during the last three weeks of June, stood at 103.7, down from 106.2 last quarter and 109.5 in the fourth quarter of 2010.

► The Conference Board said business leaders remained generally positive on their financial position and profitability, but predictions about the Canadian economy had worsened.

► Just 30.9 per cent believed economic conditions will improve in the next six months, down from 40.6 per cent last quarter.

CHANGING THE CHANNEL

Viewers hang up on pay TV

The weak U.S. economy is hitting Americans where they spend a lot of their free time: They're cancelling or forgoing cable and satellite TV subscriptions in record numbers.

In a tally by the Associated Press, eight of the nine largest pay-TV providers in the U.S. lost 195,700 subscribers in the April-to-June quarter. That's the first quarterly loss for the group, which serves about 70 per cent of households. The loss amounts to 0.2 per cent of their 83.2 million video subscribers.

The chief cause appears to be persistently high unemployment and a housing market that has many people living with their parents, reducing the need for a separate cable bill.

But it's also possible people are turning to cheap Internet video.

Human-rights critics are insincere: PM

Critics of free trade with Colombia who talk about human-rights abuses are really more concerned about protectionism, Stephen Harper claims.

"We can't block the

WHAT TO SAY WHEN DEATH IS STARING AT YOU

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE
METRO

As The Guy Who Almost Died, I have important lessons to teach you about life and death.

First, it's never a good situation when you're hoping for phlegm.

That's what I'm doing as I write this in an ER, hoping that my dry cough will change to something grosser — something a teenage boy eating Oreos would be proud to expectorate.

I have a blood disorder that nearly killed me several years ago, and the only persistent symptom was a dry cough. It brought to mind those Hollywood roles in which blonds supposedly on death's door cough tasteful amounts of blood into a white kerchief.

But eventually my symptoms progressed to waking up under my desk thinking, "This isn't good." If you develop the keen medical eye I have, you'll come to recognize that as a bad sign.

With this background, I prefer coughs to be horrible phlegm-filled monstrosities, because then I know I have a cold. When I have a dry hack with no other symptoms, I start hiding my more embarrassing sex-related possessions and making sure I'm wearing clean underwear.

As you can see, my Guy Who Almost Died wisdom runs deep. As such, I offer the following life lessons to save you the trouble of nearly dying. You're welcome.

Loved ones rock: People overplay how important it is to have a positive attitude when sick. It's like the train jumped the tracks and everybody's talking about how brave you were when all you did was hold tight and say, 'Whoooooaaah.'

On the other hand, it made a big difference for me to see family and friends around me smiling and happy, as opposed to the doctor who (I swear) kept looking back and forth between me and the body bags.

Victimhood sucks: I joined a Facebook group for survivors of my condition, but it was mostly people talking about how they'd never live without fear again. What's the point?

It's like my hero, the sheep from Garfield, says: There are problems you can do something about, so why worry? And there are problems you can't do anything about, so why worry?

Love your body: People who look in the mirror and say, "I hate my body" because it's not perfect deserve a slap. People with, say, ALS can hate their bodies if they so choose.

You have to love yours. That's a rule.

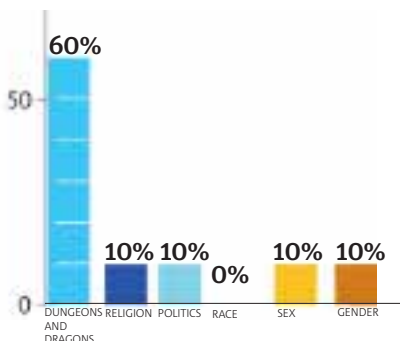

Even love the bad stuff. Especially the phlegm. Cough, cough, ahem.

Worth Mentioning

TOMATOES. Any way you slice it, the tomato is one confusing comestible.

Is it a fruit or a vegetable? This is the kind of thing that can spark quite the argument, with both sides passionately supporting their claims. Oddly enough, both are right, at least according to the USDA's Economic Research Service. Yes, botanically speaking the tomato is a fruit, but horticulturally and legally it is considered a vegetable.

This debate has been adjudicated by none other than the U.S. Supreme Court. It happened in the late 19th century in connection with a challenge to tariffs on imported produce. The high court ruled that despite the botanical definition, tomatoes are a vegetable, in part because at the tables of the time they were served as "the principal part of the repast" and not as dessert.

No telling what the justices would have done in today's envelope-pushing culinary world of tomato jams and gelatos.

In the U.S., today's tomatoes are mainly tariff-free since those that aren't grown domestically are mostly imported from Mexico and Canada, which are covered by the NAFTA free trade zone.

Somebody has been eating her porridge...

A woman who turned her rural Northern California home into a spa for wild bears won't go to jail.

The San Francisco Chronicle reports that Lynne Gravier of Laytonville pleaded guilty Monday in Mendocino County to a misdemeanor charge of feeding big game.

However, prosecutors agreed to drop the charge in three years if Gravier agrees to stop her bear feeding.

Gravier says she's glad it's over.

The 77-year-old woman set out a wading pool and bought thousands of pounds of food to feed her guests with corn meal and peanut butter sandwiches.

Neighbours complained that the bears killed livestock and broke into homes.

Last year, authorities found 15 black bears at Gravier's home. The filthy house was condemned, and Gravier now lives elsewhere.

Getting closer to the cast of Glee

NED

SCENE@METRONews.ca
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

For most television actors, the months between filming seasons of a show is a time for vacation or squeezing in film roles. For the Glee kids, not so much. Instead, they hit the road to tide their fans over until new episodes hit the air. And now the cast makes the jump to the big screen with Glee: The 3D Concert Movie, a best-of mix of their stadium tour that took them across the U.S. and to Europe during their summer off.

While the live tour isn't a new thing for the Glee cast — they did the same last summer — the experience of playing to 20,000 fans a night isn't something they find easy to get used to.

"It is different because on a set it's closed off. I think crowds are a little more forgiving than your script supervisor," says Darren Criss, who plays Colfer's private school-attending boyfriend Blaine.

The concert film also features some cute backstage interviews with the cast, done as their on-screen characters — an acting exercise that proved more difficult for some, it turns out.

"It's hard. I definitely blew it a couple of times," Criss says.

In one particularly humorous moment, Michele's Rachel is told that her idol, Barbra Streisand, is in the audience that night, which renders her speechless.

Michele admits real life isn't that far off.

"I did get to meet her,"

► Want a way to feel closer to your favourite characters on Glee? Now you can as they're coming to the big screen in 3-D.

she says. "I held it together and cried when she walked away."

Backstage interviews aside, Michele says keeping in character on tour wasn't a priority.

"Some of us onstage, if they wanted to really embody their characters, they did," she says. "I feel like I did a nice blend of Rachel and of Lea while I was on stage performing. We are our characters, but when we walk off stage we are definitely ourselves."

Adapting their live show for the presence of cameras might have seemed like a challenge for the cast, but they say that during the two days the film crew was with them the bigger problem was remembering they were there.

"I kept seeing this woman who was walking backward backstage," Michele remembers. "Every time would walk toward her, she would start walking backward in front of me. I was like, 'This woman has lost her mind.' And then I realized she had a camera on the front of her and she was videotaping me walking."

Angie, kids hide out in London

► Brangelina brood in city while Brad films World War Z ► Angelina nervous about this week's rioting, but has taken the children out

Angelina Jolie reportedly wasn't too happy staying in London while Brad Pitt films World War Z — and that was before this week's riots broke out.

"Angie was a little nervous, but felt safe," a source says.

The riots began amid anger over a fatal police shooting.

"She was really scared and worried about the safety of the kids, but, as the day has gone by, we've been able to get a clear picture on what's going on. She felt safe enough to take the children out. Of course, we are not going anywhere near central London."

The family is staying in the suburb of Richmond, while Pitt is currently shooting on the coast.

"Brad is worried," the source says.

"He's pretty safe because he's in Falmouth, but knowing Angie and the kids are in London is what's making him worried."

"He has been calling the house regularly, to make sure they are OK and calm."

Mad Men has gone beyond a fashion fad. The AMC show about a 1960s ad agency — in which style is as important as the characters and plot — continues to influence runways and retailers with a branded collection debuting next week at Banana Republic.

The new clothing line also provides a temporary fix for Mad Men devotees awaiting the show's return in 2012. No new episodes of the show aired this year.

"Mad Men shows you how to look great in the workplace, and it shows you how to work it," Coles says.

It's the rare TV show that glamorizes the office and fills it with attractive people, she says: "When you look at something like The Office, no male executive wants to recreate the style of Steve Carell. No one wears lipstick at Dunder Mifflin. Mad Men makes the office a more exciting place than it often is, and Banana Republic is trying to channel that."

Madison Avenue during that era was practically a catwalk with men in three-piece suits and fedoras, and women in sheaths and high-heel pumps carrying handle-top handbags.

It's a good look — and one that people look good in, says Simon Kneen, creative director for Banana Republic. "It's about good tailoring, it's bon ton, and a little more buttoned up and polished."

But, he says, a key part of the collaboration between Banana Republic and the show's costume designer Janie Bryant was to be sure they weren't crafting costumes. The clothes are modern, with shapes and details adapted to a contemporary eye, Kneen explains.

Rock your way to relaxation

► Not a fan of weeding and watering? ► Soothe your soul with a low-maintenance rock garden

DIY IDEAS

Avoid the headache of gardening and bring some Zen to your own backyard with careful planting, specific stone choices and the creation of your own rock garden.

Derek Stearns and Dean Marsico are the hosts of Rock Solid on DIY Network Canada.

These stonemasons regularly tackle masonry projects for the yard and home — whether it's fixing a front step or creating a backyard fire pit.

Rock your world

You need to select the stone you will be using, keeping in mind to choose a variety of large and small boulders, flat stones, coloured river bed stones and flagstone.

When installing the stones, begin with the largest and heaviest.

Use crowbars and stone shims to roll these boulders into place, creating a footing so they look natural rather than sitting on ground level.

Planting ideas

Pick plants that are suitable to your local climate to complete the design of the rock garden.

Remember to choose multiple textures and colours to create an interesting aesthetic.

Once you're ready to plant, work down the landscape and scatter the various colours and textures amongst the entire space.

Walk the walk

The final touch is to create a stepping stone area through the garden that can be used to weed, water, and stroll.

Begin by placing the stones in their desired location, then trace the outline of stones with a shovel.

Remove the stone and dig out a footing before replacing it.

Lastly, add mulch to the entire area around rocks, plants and your walkway to decorate, retain water and prevent weeds.

A bad boy no more?

► Celeb chef Gordon Ramsay tired of persona that made him famous

Ramsay's eatery

Here's what you need to know about Ramsay's new Montreal restaurant.

Head chef

Guillermo Russo is a Montreal native who has worked at such eateries as Toronto's Black Hoof and Lucien and Ottawa's Aroma.

Renovations

The eatery is housed in a two-storey dining hall that's been given a newer, brighter and cleaner look.

Cuisine

The staple comfort foods like chicken and ribs and steak familiar to several generations of customers are still on the menu.

The man who put the "F" in food says he's tired of being recognized only as the bad boy of haute cuisine.

"I don't get judged enough for what I put on a plate," said a soft-spoken Gordon Ramsay, using none of the scorching profanity that so often reduces his TV tirades to a series of bleeps.

"I get judged more, I suppose, as a persona from TV, which is a pain in the butt, to be honest," he said on the eve of yesterday's opening of his first restaurant in Canada.

"I have three Michelin stars, which was my first-ever ambition in cooking. Today's media, it has its good parts and its bad parts but judge me on the plate, not me on the TV."

The Scottish-born

Ramsay's Montreal restaurant, has been a local favourite since 1936 when it opened as Rotisserie Laurier BBQ. Its now got a new name: the Laurier Gordon Ramsay.

Ramsay, who has a reputation for putting flagging restaurants back on their feet, acknowledged he felt like he'd been taken to a retirement home when he was brought to

Rotisserie

Laurier BBQ.

"Businesses don't survive on nostalgia," he noted, saying he's confident old customers as well as new clients will be thrilled with what he's done.

Wozniacki gets bounced

Top-ranked player knocked out in a second-round upset

Defending champion Caroline Wozniacki has crashed out of the women's draw of the Rogers Cup.

The top-ranked Dane was shocked by Roberta Vinci 6-4, 7-5 in the second round yesterday afternoon.

Wozniacki, who has won a WTA-leading five titles this year, was up 5-1 in the second set and looking to rally from a set down. However, the No. 22-ranked Italian stormed back with three break points to complete the upset.

Wozniacki had a bye in the first round and never really got going against Vinci, sending her return long on match point. Wozniacki also hit returns long twice at the first set point to give Vinci a lead she would not relinquish.

"I would have liked to have won that one and especially after leading 5-1 in the second," Wozniacki said. "It's not fun to lose this, but there's nothing really I can do about it now, just practise and try to do better."

Windy conditions wreaked havoc with Wozniacki's serve in the first set, as the ball repeatedly floated away when she tossed it above her. She would double fault seven times in the match.

"It was very difficult at first with the wind," Wozniacki said. "Especially when you threw it up. It was going everywhere, so definitely that didn't make it easy. It was blowing in different directions, but it's the same for both players."

It will be Vinci's first appearance in the third round of the Rogers Cup in her third visit to the tournament. She has wins this year in Barcelona, Budapest and Hertogenbosch.

▶ It was a dream matchup for the 21-year-old

Pospisil, who has idolized the tennis great since childhood.

▶ But after a close first set on centre court at Uniprix Stadium, Federer disposed of the 155th-ranked native of Vernon, B.C., 7-5, 6-3.

▶ Play was delayed in Montreal at approximately 6 p.m. ET due to heavy rain-fall. Before the weather delay, No. 1 seed Novak Djokovic survived an early scare before defeating Russia's Nikolay Davydenko 7-5, 6-1.

Jays deny stealing signs

► Toronto's Jose Bautista reacts to a strike call during last night's game against Oakland.

► ESPN reports players' complaints ► GM: 'There's zero truth to this'

Jose Bautista wonders what it's going to be next.

"I'm intrigued to see what they're going to come up with next week or next year to try to decipher why we're playing good or why we're doing good or something," the Toronto Blue Jays right-fielder said before last night's game against the Oakland Athletics.

The major-league home-run leader was responding to an ESPN report that says at least four members of an opposing team — identified by Bautista as the Chicago White Sox — claim the Blue Jays stole signs during games at Rogers Centre.

Players in the visiting bullpen noticed a man

"There's zero truth to this. No one's ever contacted me. No GM has picked up the phone and called me."

JAYS GM ALEX ANTHOPOULOUS ON SIGN-STEALING ACCUSATIONS

dressed in white in the outfield in Toronto in April of 2010. According to the report, the players said the man made signals from the stands to Toronto batters, apparently alerting them to what pitch was coming.

Michael Teevan, the public relations director for Major League Baseball, said there are no clear rules when it comes to sign stealing. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sports in brief

It's official: London lands hoops team

BASKETBALL. The National Basketball League of Canada's CEO, Andre Livingston, announced yesterday that London has been officially approved to begin play in the 2011-12 season.

Owners Vito Frijia and Tayler Brown applauded London city council's support in bringing professional basketball to the region.

"As a lifelong fan of the game of basketball, I take great pride in bringing this great sport to London," said Frijia.

The London team kicks off its 18-game home schedule at the John Labatt Centre in early November. ● METRO

Pair of Majors voted into league's elite

BASEBALL. Outfielder Cleveland Brownlee and right-handed pitcher Jordi Amargos of the London Majors were among 11 players selected to the Intercounty Baseball League's First Team All-Stars. They each received 29 of a possible 35 votes.

The Majors also earned two Second Team All-Star selections. Catcher Tyler Graham and outfielder Allan Cattysse received 24 and 18 votes respectively.

Pitcher Adam Paish, a UWO product, finished second in rookie of the year voting. ● METRO

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 You don't like to admit defeat but with your ruler Mars at odds with Pluto today, you may have to.
♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 A relationship that has been up and down is beginning to stabilize. Don't let minor irritations ruin it.
♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Most likely what you thought was a problem is not a problem at all.
♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 If you feel physically and mentally exhausted, you must heed your body's warning and slow down.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 People will try to play on your feelings of guilt, but you must not let them succeed.
♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 A problem you have been struggling with will resolve itself today and the relief you feel will be euphoric.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 If you allow yourself to dwell on negative imaginings, they could so easily lead to negative events.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Try not to take anything too seriously today, especially if you tend to dwell on perceived slights.
